Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1-5, 15-17, and 19-21 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Sugimoto et al., U.S. patent # 5,322,864 for the reasons made of record in the correspondence dated April 28, 2005.

Claims 1-7, 16-17, 19-21, and 37-38 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Geeck, U.S. patent # 4,748,194 for the reasons made of record in the correspondence dated April 28, 2005.

Claims 1-2, 4-8, and 16-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Lutz et al., U.S. patent # 5,011,627 for the reasons made of record in the correspondence dated April 28, 2005.

Double Patenting

The nonstatutory double patenting rejection is based on a judicially created doctrine grounded in public policy (a policy reflected in the statute) so as to prevent the unjustified or improper timewise extension of the "right to exclude" granted by a patent and to prevent possible harassment by multiple assignees. A nonstatutory obviousness-type double patenting rejection is appropriate where the conflicting claims are not identical, but at least one examined application claim is not patentably distinct from the reference claim(s) because the examined application claim is either anticipated by, or would have been obvious over, the reference claim(s). See, e.g., In re Berg, 140 F.3d 1428, 46 USPQ2d 1226 (Fed. Cir. 1998); In re Goodman, 11 F.3d 1046, 29 USPQ2d 2010 (Fed. Cir. 1993); In re Longi, 759 F.2d 887, 225 USPQ 645 (Fed. Cir. 1985); In re Van Ornum, 686 F.2d 937, 214 USPQ 761 (CCPA 1982); In re Vogel, 422 F.2d 438, 164 USPQ 619 (CCPA 1970); and In re Thorington, 418 F.2d 528, 163 USPQ 644 (CCPA 1969).

Art Unit: 1712

A timely filed terminal disclaimer in compliance with 37 CFR 1.321(c) or 1.321(d) may be used to overcome an actual or provisional rejection based on a nonstatutory double patenting ground provided the conflicting application or patent either is shown to be commonly owned with this application, or claims an invention made as a result of activities undertaken within the scope of a joint research agreement.

Effective January 1, 1994, a registered attorney or agent of record may sign a terminal disclaimer. A terminal disclaimer signed by the assignee must fully comply with 37 CFR 3.73(b).

Claims 1, 2, 6-8, 13-19, 31, and 37 are provisionally rejected under the judicially created doctrine of obviousness-type double patenting as being unpatentable over claims 1, 9, 14-17, 19-21, 32-35, and 40 of copending Application No. 10/836,001 for the reasons made of record in the correspondence dated April 28, 2005.

This is a provisional double patenting rejection since the conflicting claims have not yet been patented.

Response to Arguments

In response to applicant's argument that the aforementioned references do not contemplate the utilization of their inventions as aluminizing materials, a recitation of the intended use of the claimed invention must result in a structural difference between the claimed invention and the prior art in order to patentably distinguish the claimed invention from the prior art. If the prior art structure is capable of performing the intended use, then it meets the claim. Insofar as there appears to be no clear distinction between the claimed compositions and those disclosed in the prior art, it may be properly assumed that the latter are, in fact, capable of aluminizing a metal substrate.

MPEP 2111.02 further expounds on the treatment of claims having a recitation of intended use in the preamble:

“During examination, statements in the preamble reciting the purpose or intended use of the claimed invention must be evaluated to determine whether the recited purpose or intended use results in a structural difference (or, in the case of process claims, manipulative difference) between the claimed invention and the prior art. If so, the recitation serves to limit the claim. See, e.g., In re Otto, 312 F.2d 937, 938, 136 USPQ 458, 459 (CCPA 1963) (The claims were directed to a core member for hair curlers and a process of making a core member for hair curlers. Court held that the intended use of hair curling was of no significance to the structure and process of making.); In re Sinex, 309 F.2d 488, 492, 135 USPQ 302, 305 (CCPA 1962) (statement of intended use in an apparatus claim did not distinguish over the prior art apparatus). If a prior art structure is capable of performing the intended use as recited in the preamble, then it meets the claim. See, e.g., In re Schreiber, 128 F.3d 1473, 1477, 44 USPQ2d 1429, 1431 (Fed. Cir. 1997) (anticipation rejection affirmed based on Board’s factual finding that the reference dispenser (a spout disclosed as useful for purposes such as dispensing oil from an oil can) would be capable of dispensing popcorn in the manner set forth in appellant’s claim 1 (a dispensing top for dispensing popcorn in a specified manner)) and cases cited therein..... [C]lear reliance on the preamble during prosecution to distinguish the claimed invention from the prior art transforms the preamble into a claim limitation because such reliance indicates use of the preamble to define, in part, the claimed invention.... Without such reliance, however, a preamble generally is not limiting when the claim body describes a structurally complete invention such that deletion of the preamble phrase does not affect the structure or steps of the claimed invention.” Consequently, preamble language merely extolling benefits or features of the claimed invention does not limit the claim scope without clear reliance on those benefits or features as patentably significant.”) Catalina Mktg. Int ’l v. Coolsavings.com, Inc., 289 F.3d at

Art Unit: 1712

808-09, 62 USPQ2d at 1785. See also Intirtool, Ltd. v. Texar Corp., 369 F.3d 1289, 1294-96, 70USPQ2d 1780, 1783-84 (Fed. Cir. 2004) (holding that the preamble of a patent claim directed to a “hand-held punch pliers for simultaneously punching and connecting overlapping sheet metal” was not a limitation of the claim because (i) the body of the claim described a “structurally complete invention” without the preamble, and (ii) statements in prosecution history referring to “punching and connecting” function of invention did not constitute “clear reliance” on the preamble needed to make the preamble a limitation).”

In the Examiner’s estimation, the body of the claim discloses a structurally complete invention that is not in any way further defined or explained by the term “aluminizing” in the preamble. That is to say, the omission of the preamble phrase would not affect the “structure”, or makeup” of the composition. Therefore, the emphasized term has no bearing on the patentability of the claims provided, of course, that the prior art invention is, again, inherently capable of functioning in the capacity envisioned by Applicant.

Concerning the obviousness-type double patenting rejection, the Examiner is somewhat puzzled by Applicant’s contention that, because the conflicting Application was commonly assigned at the time the present invention was made, it is somehow invalidated as “prior art”. For an issue of double patenting to even be raised, the applications are, by necessity, commonly assigned. It is submitted that Applicant might consider filing a terminal disclaimer as a means of overcoming this rejection.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 14 and 39 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if the obviousness-type double patenting rejection were overcome and they were rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
